Much of its work has been in a large garden felling mature trees and pruning thick branches. Metal cutting blades have been used for cutting steel. Alas after nearly thirty years of life our Bosch stopped in the middle of sawing through a elderly oak gate post that would have been no problem in its youth. There was no smell of overheating or burning and fuses, sockets and cables were OK. Fault finding with the manual and internet suggested the problem could be the operation of a safety cutout when the carbon brushed became too worn and could cause damage to the motor. The saw was well designed and held together by screws with standard heads. I was able to inspect the brushes and they were indeed badly and for one of them the carbon w as not completely clear of its metal holder. After removing the plastic holding plate it was easy to slip out the carbon rods that were on springs. Ordered replacement carbon brushes for the modest cost of less than 5 for the pair. This model and also the PFZ 500E have now been replaced by the PSA 700E. My only small criticism of the PFZ550 is that the blades had to be fitted using a loose Allen key and often needed tightening. Shall I live with this or look at the brand new

PSA 700E before deciding whether to return it to the retailer. Great that someone still stocks brushes for this fantastic piece of kit. My PFZ550 is now back in action. Service was very good. Sawing used to take a lot of effort, but now, with this innovative saw from Bosch, it's an easier job than you could imagine. Whether wood, metal or plastic, the Bosh All Purpose saw cuts through objects quickly, precisely and conveniently. With its powerful highperformance motor and long saw blade stroke, it works its way through the material with ease. Regardless of whether you want to cut slats to lengths, saw branches, plastic or metal pies, the PFZ 500 E gets the job done quickly. When working, the efficient vibration damping with counterbalanced mechanism, unrivalled in its class, ensures that work is comfortable and less tiring. The PFZ 500 E All Purpose Saw has a powerful 500 watt motor and a stroke length of 23 mm, which ensures an over 40% faster sawing progress than other tools in its class on a minimum level of noise. Cutting depth in wood 150 mm Cutting depth in metal 10 mm Cutting depth in plastic pipe 150 mm diameter Bosch SDS System The Bosch SDS System simplifies the process of switching between different applications. The system allows quick and easy toolfree saw blade changes at the slide of a button. Electronic Trigger and Stroke Scale Rate The Bosch Electronic Speed Trigger allows the user to vary the stroke rate for a continuously variable speed from 0 to 2,700 strokes per minute. It works like the accelerator pedal in a car. The stroke rate is dependent on the material and is to be determined by a practical trial.

A lower stroke rate is necessary for cutting some materials such as plastic and metal. Counter Balance System Low Vibration Low vibration working is achieved thanks to an integrated counterbalance mechanism. A counterbalance weight inside the tool is driven in the opposite direction to that of the blade to reduce the vibrations. Easy To Use and Compact The Bosch PFZ 500 E is newly designed for even higher usability. The saw is both compact and light, weighing in at only 2 kg. The tool features an integrated hand protector and Bosch Softgrip for safe and convenient working. The gripping surface, attached on the upper side of the machine, reduces the risk of losing control of the machine and increases user comfort. At the same time, the rubber coating achieves a vibrationabsorbing effect. Safety To prevent the saw from being switched on unintentionally, for example when picking it up, an integrated safety switch lock release buttons are provided. Both right and lefthanded users will find a conveniently located safety button that needs to be pressed before the trigger can be pressed to start the machine. The Bosch PFZ All Purpose Saw also features an integrated hand protector located just above the saw blade for safe and convenient working. I will not say it cut through like butter, but it certainly did the job to my entire satisfaction.

There were some items of rusty metal which have been cut up satisfactorily. I then decided that some fairly large shrubs and small trees should be tackled and I was again more than happy with the way it performed the task. I now have a useful all purpose saw that I would heartily recommend to anyone with similar requirements. Just choose your task and slow and steady will get you there!All excellent but this. I have shoulder problems exacerbated by sawing so bought this to take some stress off. Im not very impressed. The problem is not with the build. Its well designed and not too heavy. The notool blade change is handy. The problem is that for anyone who can saw decently by hand it offers no advantage. It is slower and less accurate. The enemy of sawing is vibration. This makes it hard to cut accurately one handed best to clamp the piece. It helps to rest the heel at the foot of the blade on the piece to reduce vibration where you can. So for carpentry work I think it is too slow and too inaccurate. For outdoor work the Bosch cordless chainsaw is excellent. The only thing I found this useful for is rough cutting offcuts for the woodburner. I could see this could be useful for people who cant use a conventional hand saw for whatever reason, but for any application which can be undertaken by another power saw Id choose one of those first.A very good general saw not too heavy either which means its quite easy to use one handed with care. I have to say it is very well made perhaps my only quibble is that the cable is a little short thought that just be me and my sometimes chaotic organisation of the job. I know other users have mentioned vibration and I tend to agree though personally I didnt think it was that bad. Blade changes are easy and the build quality of the saw is very good which helps when it comes to the blade change as there is the definite feeling in my opinion that the blade is secure and good to go.

Its a great, lightweight general purpose bit of kit no issues with it at all.To say it lacks power is, in this instance, almost a compliment, but if you have the odd 30 minutes to cut through a piece of timber that an average bow saw will slice through in two minutes, just about sums up the painful inadequacy of this piece of Bosch. Save your money and a reciprocating saw that wont leave you frustrated and cheesed off.I had a large fence panel I needed to cut into small pieces, so I could dispose of it. The machine doesnt cut smoothly, even though this wood was only a few millimetres thick, it kicks back very strongly if the wood you are cutting is not firmly clamped down. Well its very difficult to clamp a 6 x 6 fence panel so I ended up using a hand saw.Really easy to use and not too heavy. I found if I used it as a conventional saw to start a groove then used the power it stayed on track without jumping about, making a really smooth cut in a fraction of the time it would take by hand. Its really easy to get a straight cut too because you just hold it and follow your line. You do need to get the wood you are cutting held firmly down as the vibration can shake the wood around, but the saw is easy to hold in one hand while you hold onto any large extending piece of wood with the other hand. The variable speed is really useful. Comes in a lovely carry case and two blades, one a general purpose wood blade and one for hard wood and metal. I havent yet tried cutting any metal. My only reason for not giving a full 5 stars is that the carrying case has slots for 3 blades, it seems a bit mean to only give you two, and looking on the web blades are fairly pricey. Ive built two sets of shelves using the saw and saved a huge amount of time and saved my arms from aching. Cutting wood is now fun rather than a chore, there really doesnt seem any point in using a manual saw when you can get one of these. Worked well giving a smooth cut through the branches without any effort.

Be sure if you are pruning trees or similar to use the correct saw blade; the fine toothed blade for carpentry would be unsuitable. Dont force the blade through the timber or tree, just allow the machine to cut at its own pace applying gentle pressure, otherwise you will blunt the blade. If used with care, it is a good product. Can be used singlehanded but not recommended. Performed well with supplied blade you get two. Positives include low vibration, no hand pain after using it off and on for two hours. Noise level seemed fine too. Case a nice touch. Power cable is short so an extension cable will be required. If you decide not to buy this try and select one with an on safety switch. This helps to keep the fingers and lets you hang the saw on one of the cut branches without switching it on.
